HOW TO TALK ABOUT SUICIDE: A QUICK REFERENCE GUIDE

Speaking about suicide presents numerous opportunities to individuals and organizations, including increasing safety, reducing stigma, establishing credibility on the topic, or just educating the public. If we are going to succeed in lowering military and veteran suicide rates, it's important to talk about suicide openly, knowledgeably, respectfully, and safely. The following guidelines will help.

BEFORE YOU SPEAK, KNOW YOUR AUDIENCE AND MESSAGING GOALS.

KEY AUDIENCES

At-risk persons
Survivors
Professionals
General public

MESSAGING GOALS

» Keep safe
» Destigmatize
» Burnish credibility
» Educate

SAFETY, IS ABOVE ALL, THE MOST IMPORTANT CONCERN WHEN TALKING ABOUT SUICIDE.

- » Anyone you speak to could be at risk
- » When in doubt, remember The Golden Rule.
- » Expert unexpected conversations to occur. Be ready.

SOME BASIC SAFETY GUIDELINES:

AVOID SAYING

"Committed suicide"
"Successful attempt"
"Failed attempt"
"22 veterans a day"

SAY INSTEAD

» "Suicide death"
» "Suicide attempt"
» "Just under 20 service members and veterans a day"

- » Don't overshare details of other suicides like means, location, or vivid imagery.
- » Don't sensationalize, glamorize, romanticize, or normalize suicide.
- » Don't speculate on our oversimplify the cause of a suicide death.
- » Don't refer to suicidal attempt or act as "selfish," "stupid," or "crazy."

HOW YOU TALK ABOUT SUICIDE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN WHAT YOU SAY.

- » Speaking openly and confidently breaks taboos and reduces stigma.
- » Be mindful of your body language, eye contact, and emotional cues.
- » Stay calm, be compassionate, listen, and act.
- » Don't whisper or speak in hushed tones.
- » Don't speak in euphemisms or beat around the bush.
- » It's okay to say the word "suicide" out loud.

STAY HOPEFUL. PROVIDE RESOURCES.

- » Military service members or veterans may call Stop Soldier Suicide 24/7 at 844-503-0553.
- » The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline is 988.
